Cultivating the desired pre-health competencies encompasses five key areas: academics, research, clinical experience, community service, and shadowing. Through intentional engagement in each of these areas, students gain the competencies, values, and skills necessary to meet the demands of competitive and rigorous professional healthcare programs.